

Research Showcase -- <http://repository.cmu.edu/>

Research Showcase is Carnegie Mellon's institutional repository. It provides a place for faculty and graduate students to bring content to the web and increase the visibility of their work. It collects and organizes Carnegie Mellon's research output and makes it accessible for scholars and researchers worldwide.

How to Submit a Paper to Research Showcase:

1. Make sure your paper is in PDF format. If your paper is not a PDF, please contact the Research Showcase Coordinator for more information. Most publishers permit the uploading of pre- or post-print PDFs.
2. Submit the paper by emailing it or sending the files on a disk to the address listed below. Include the following information: abstract, keywords, and name, affiliation, and email address for each author if not included within the paper itself. If your abstract contains special characters, please use HTML formatting.

More Information

If you publish this paper or a revised version elsewhere after it is submitted to Research Showcase, please send the citation of the new version to kbehrman@andrew.cmu.edu so that we can update the record.

To check your publisher's Open Access policy, visit SherpaRomeo at <http://www.sherpa.ac.uk/romeo/>.

If you'd like to learn about managing your research on your own SelectedWorks page, visit <http://works.bepress.com/> or contact the Research Showcase Outreach Coordinator.

Research Showcase can also house conference proceedings, journals, images, and streaming video.

For questions or to submit research, please contact:

Katie Behrman, Research Showcase Outreach Coordinator
Carnegie Mellon University Libraries
Hunt Library 205

412-268-2536
kbehrman@andrew.cmu.edu