Multivariate second-order random fields in space and time by

Chunsheng Ma
Department of Mathematics and Statistics
Wichita State University
Wichita, KS 67260, USA
cma@math.wichita.edu

Abstract

We will talk about multivariate random fields with second-order moments, and will address two crucial questions for such a random field, what kind of the square matrix function can be employed as its covariance matrix, and, in particular, what type of the functions can be employed as its cross-covariances. Some parametric or nonparametric examples are given for stationary and nonstationary cases in a temporal, spatial, or spatio-temporal domain.