

Dissertation Boot Camps

Science and Technology (May 20-23)

- Showing how your work is new
- Writing an abstract (one page; one paragraph)
- Making technical and scientific writing comprehensible

- Presenting data
- How to manage and archive your data

- Presenting your work (job talks; conference presentations)
- Time management & motivation*
- Communicating with your thesis advisor and your committee*

- Writing a literature review
- Using citation management software*
- Vocabulary strategies for non-native English speakers

Humanities, Arts, and Qualitative Research (May 28-31)

- Showing how your work is new
- Writing an abstract (one page; one paragraph)
- Making complex writing comprehensible

- Writing a literature review
- Researching tips and tricks*
- Using citation management software*

- Presenting your work (job talks; conference presentations)

- Time management & motivation*
- Communicating with your thesis advisor and your committee*
- Vocabulary strategies for non-native English speakers

 Topics we particularly would like help with

Questions for ADGP

General

- What other workshops should we provide?
- How else can we be useful?

Dissertation Boot Camp

- What other topics should we cover?
- What is the best way to receive faculty help and guidance?